Hi Abi,

Thank you for speaking with me today and for sending through the position description. I believe I would be a strong fit for the role, contributing not only to release coordination, scheduling, and deployment, but also to coaching the technical team in the effective use of CI/CD pipelines. This can help identify development conflicts and dependencies earlier while supporting faster, more reliable release cycles.

Release Management responsibilities can vary across organisations. In my experience, the technology itself is often the most straightforward part; sustained delivery depends on two less visible factors: a robust, current automated regression suite using tools agreed by the team, and consistent adherence to standards and procedures throughout feature and project deployments.

A trusted and collaborative environment, supported by effective coaching and mentoring, helps teams overcome these challenges. This enables the Release Manager to maintain strong governance while helping the team deliver confidently and consistently.

Please email me a summary (4-5 bullet points) highlighting your skills and experience relevant to this role.	Please check below this table for 5 bullet points I consider relevant for the position

- As a Release Manager, I plan and coordinate scheduled releases, off-cycle deployments, major projects, and hotfixes to maximise value for customers and the business. I align resources, communications and change management activities to deliver releases smoothly and reliably.
- My experience as a Requirements Engineer and Test Automation Lead enables me to help development teams maintain robust, current regression suites. This reduces the risk of unintended changes and improves delivery quality. I have implemented commercial tools, including Micro Focus OpenText UFT (formerly HP QTP), Tosca and TestComplete, as well as open-source frameworks using Selenium, Ruby and Python.
- I lead release-readiness assessments and approval processes through clear, well-defined quality gates. Successful releases also depend on trusted partnerships with Test Managers, Change Managers and business users. Transparent communication aligns technical capability with stakeholder expectations, whether delivering a small feature or a large-scale deployment.
- I bring more than 30 years of IT experience across project management, business analysis, testing, test automation, development and architecture. My curiosity has consistently led me beyond formal role boundaries, allowing me to build broad technical and delivery expertise. This hands-on experience helps me understand the priorities of multidisciplinary teams and communicate effectively across functions.
- I have enterprise-platform experience across Salesforce, SAP, PeopleSoft, Amdocs CRM and Siebel, with strong configuration expertise in OpenText Quality Center, TestRail and Jira, including Xray and Zephyr. I also integrate Jira with Bitbucket, Azure DevOps and GitHub to provide end-to-end traceability from epics, user stories and acceptance criteria through development artefacts and test execution.

Thank you,
Efraim
